From September 16, 2020, the maximum amount of collection of overdue tax payment by convenience stores is raised to NTD 30,000

In order to improve the convenience of the public for payments made in the convenience stores, from September 16, 2020, AEA raises the maximum amount of payment collection regarding the tax payments enforced by the taxation bureau in four major convenience stores. The maximum amount of each payment is raised from NTD 20,000 to NTD 30,000.

AEA says that as long as the overdue payment is less than NTD 30,000, the public may bring the payment notice sent by the Branches with a barcode and pay in any of the 7-ELEVEN, Family Mart, Hi-Life Mart, and OKmart stores before the payment deadline without a handling fee. The public may also use payment tools (listed in the following table) instead of cash to pay the overdue tax payment at the counter.

AEA reminds the public that there are many convenience stores, if you receive a payment notice with a barcode sent by the AEA, you may choose to go to the nearest convenience store to pay the overdue payment. The convenience of this implementation will save your time and effort.

If you do not pay the overdue payment before the payment deadline indicated on the notice, your property, such as deposit, salaries, or automobiles will be seized by the Branches. AEA hopes the public take this notice seriously and don't let negligence lead to enforcements or impact your credit.

Name	The maximum amount of each payment	Payment Tools available
7-ELEVEN	Raise from NTD 20,000 to NTD 30,000	Cash, Credit Card, ICASH2.0, icashPay, OPEN Wallet
Family Mart		Cash, Credit Card, FamiPay
Hi-Life Mart		Cash
OKmart		Cash
Note: The said information is provided by respective convenience stores, the tools or available credit cards issued by card issuing institutions actually available at the counter should be determined by each convenience store on-site.
